TELEPHONE QUESTION.

Government Reply to Mr. Parker Noss.

We have received from the Colonial Secretary this copy of a letter addressed to the Secretary, Hongkong General Chamber of Commerce.

Sir,—In continuation of my letter of the 21st. August, I am directed to forward for the consideration of the two Chambers of Commerce the enclosed copy of a letter received from Mr. Parker-Noss regarding the Report of the Telephone Committee.

Mr. Parker-Noss makes various statements about the Government and myself, to the effect that Mr. Cook's figures were accepted, and that the Government and the Company had concurred as to the terms of a new agreement. The position taken up by the Government was fully explained at the meeting of the Committee of the two Chambers; but I may take this opportunity to repeat that the matter never went beyond informal conversations. At the date of the meeting referred to, various suggestions regarding the proposed agreement, which was in outline merely and had not been drafted, were under discussion between the Government Departments concerned, and the matter had not come before the Governor-in-Council in any way for consideration.

The publication of the rates proposed by Mr. Cook and Mr. Cole was somewhat reluctantly agreed to by the Government at the urgent request of Mr. Parker-Noss, who was informed that the question of the agreement had not been considered by the Governor-in-Council and that the rates would not become operative until the agreement was signed.

I am, etc.
(Sd.) M. FLETCHER,
Colonial Secretary.

SHROFF STABBED.

Daylight Robbery in Statue Square.

Details of a report made to the police, give sensational features to an armed robbery that is said to have been committed in Statue Square at 3.30 yesterday afternoon. The victim is Lam Shu, described as a shroff, who states that after alighting from a tramcar, to go into a bank he was held up by two men armed respectively with a knife and a revolver. They took from him a sum of $7,000 in notes and made their escape by running towards the Praya, where they were lost to sight round a corner.

The victim, who is now in hospital suffering from two long cuts on the left forearm, inflicted by one of the robbers, said that he alighted from the tramcar at this particular spot to recover his hat which had fallen off. At this moment two men who were walking in the roadway came up and, pretending that they were detectives, asked what it was that he had lost under his coat. The shroff produced a parcel from his breast pocket and showed to the interrogators that it contained a wad of notes totalling $7,000. Immediately one of them made a grab at it and his accomplice with the dagger stabbed the shroff twice on the left arm when he resisted. With the money in their possession, the men ran towards the Praya and escaped.

Dr. Ma Luk, to whom the shroff went to have his injuries dressed, said that there were two long cuts on the man's forearm, but they were only skin-deep. The man, however, decided to go into hospital, and he was sent there yesterday afternoon.

ANOTHER CASE.

Very rough treatment was received by Lai Tak, a seaman, when last night, at about 9.15, he fell in with a gang of armed men at Chung Sau Lane. Placing themselves so as to cut off retreat both ways, six men accosted him, and revealed their intentions by at once seizing hold of him, at the same time rubbing pepper well into his eyes. Almost blinded by the stuff, he followed them when they took flight and a constable, who was drawn to the scene by his shouts, made one arrest. This man will be charged before the Magistrate in due course.

The funeral of the late Augusta Maria Yvanovich Basto will leave the Holy Church, Kowloon, on Thursday the 24th, inst., at 4.30 p.m. and pass the monument at 5.15 p.m.

For the half-year ended June 30th, the Hongkong Hotel, Co. Ltd., is paying an interim dividend of 60 cents on fully paid-up shares and 18 cents on partly paid-up shares.

Milk which Inspector Lockhart of the Sanitary Department, seized from the Kwan Tat Tong, of No. 3, Cochrane Street, contained no less than 67.8 per cent. of water. As the Assistant Crown Solicitor, Mr. Hazell, who prosecuted in the case, jokingly remarked afterwards, the offence was more against the present water regulations than against sanitary rules. The profiteer in the case was ordered to pay the sum of $200 as a fine.

A representative of the Eastern Cinema, who was summoned before Mr. R. E. Lindsell this morning on two counts of having a gate tied across the gateway and of causing an obstruction by allowing spectators to stand in the passages, had his attention drawn by the Magistrate to the grave possibility that might arise from the gate being tied across the gateway.

ANOTHER S.P.C.A. CASE.

Chinese Member Fined.

Inspector Fred Fisher, S.P.C.A., had another case of cruelty against a market stall-holder brought to the notice of Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Police Court this morning. Curiously enough the defendant is a member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, as a certain red card bearing a string of Chinese characters showed.

Giving evidence, Inspector Fisher said that, whilst on duty at 8.30 on the morning of the 18th, instant outside the Central Market, he saw carriers bring in two crates of fowl which were not provided with matting, and, as a result the legs and heads of the birds were protruding through the holes in the bottoms. He questioned the coolies and was told that these crates came from No. 4 Stall of the Western Market. Enquiries were pursued at this place, but the stall-holder, who now figured as the defendant in the case, denied knowing anything about the matter.

Subsequently he admitted that the crates were his, and indicated that as these were in the charge of the salesman, he could not have known anything about them. The Inspector added that on the 15th, instant, three days previous to the date of the occurrence of the present case, he had visited every poultry stall holder in the Western Market and showed them the regulations made by the C.S.P. In imposing a fine of $25, his Worship observed to the defendant that this cruel treatment of fowls had been going on for a long time, and if defendant did not stop it, he would be let in for a heavier fine. It was much cheaper, his Worship pointed out, to buy matting for the bottom of the crates than to pay a fine of the amount just imposed.

SOLICITORS AS PLAINTIFFS.

Motor Driver Sued for Costs.

Messrs. Deacon, Looker, Deacon and Harston brought an action against Yuen Sun, a motor-car driver, in the Summary Court, before Mr. Justice Wood, this morning, to recover $10, the amount alleged to have been agreed upon as costs in respect of Summary Jurisdiction action 1425 of 1921.

Mr. H. C. Macnamara represented the plaintiff firm. Yuen conducted his own defence.

Mr. S. R. Curreen, of the plaintiff firm, gave evidence to the effect that he received instructions in the case in question from defendant and another man. They consented to judgment and went into Chambers to arrange instalments. The other defendant absconded after judgment had been given. Witness agreed to charge each of the men $10. He mentioned that there were a number of cases in which motor drivers were concerned at about this time.

Defendant denied having given instructions. He had been to Messrs. Deacon, Looker, Deacon and Harston's office in respect of another case, but not in connection with the action in question. The solicitor who appeared (Mr. Macnamara) did not appear for him, but on behalf of the other (the principal) defendant. Witness had never instructed any body to appear for him.

His Honour remarked that it appeared to him that Mr. Curreen had received instructions from a crowd. He had taken their names and told them it would be $10. Mr. Macnamara replied that this was not so. It was usual to ever to charge $10 for these cases. His Honour said it was quite possible that this man, as guarantor, might have considered that the other gave the instructions. There might have been some misunderstanding at the time. He was not at all satisfied.

COLONY'S ANNUAL REPORT.

The Growth of Kowloon.

The annual General Report on the Colony of Hongkong has been forwarded us by the Hon. Colonial Secretary. From it we take the following—Trade was throughout the year in a depressed state, largely owing to the overstocked condition of the market which prevailed in the autumn of 1920.

The rice trade was on the whole unsatisfactory. The Cuban market, which is one of the main outlets, was closed to Hongkong until the end of June, when the lifting of the embargo on the importation of rice into Cuba brought temporary relief. The improvement was, however, short-lived in consequence of competition from Germany where considerable stocks of rice had been accumulated, which on account of the depreciation of the marks could be re-exported at prices considerably lower than those prevailing in the East.

Pilferage of cargo in transit which had caused the greatest anxiety to the commercial community in all parts of the world showed a distinct diminution towards the end of the year, largely owing to increased police patrol services and to more efficient control exercised by the various steamship owners, by wharf companies, and by other interests involved.

Considerable improvement was shown during the year in the mail service between Great Britain and the Far East and the delays in the transmission of telegrams which had prevailed since the war were substantially reduced by the completion of a new cable from London to Singapore.

The year was marked by further strikes affecting mechanics and skilled labour generally, resulting in advances of wages by some 30%.

The year opened with exchange at 3/2. A rapid fall was registered until on March 7th, the rate was 2/2½, the lowest for the year. Silver then reacted with the result that exchange gradually advanced with one or two setbacks until the figure of 2/11½ was reached in the early part of October. Later a steady decline set in until on December 31st, the rate was quoted at 2/7 for T/T. on London.

During recent years great and rapid development has taken place on the Kowloon Peninsula. Extensive garden lots have been converted into building sites and rapidly built over; low-lying areas have been filled in by the spoil from the levelling of other parts and expansion has therefore been possible over both; while the area available for building purposes is being extended by large reclamations on the sea front. The increase in popularity of this district is markedly shown in the latest census statistics; during the last ten years, the population of Kowloon has increased by 55,951 or 82.96 per cent., a phenomenal increase for a district which in 1881 numbered only 9,021 inhabitants.

The decennial census of the civil population of the Colony was taken in the island of Hongkong and Kowloon on the night of April 24th, and in the New Territories between March 24th, and April 24th, the floating population being enumerated between April 23rd, and 26th. The total population was found to be 625,166, an increase of 168,427 or 36.87 per cent. on the figures for 1911.

THE PEKING MUDDLE.

Cabinet Staff on Strike.

Peking, August 22.—It is semi-officially stated that Wang Chung-bai will no longer attend to the affairs of the Premier's office and it is predicted that Dr. Wellington Koo will be appointed.

WASHING CLOTHES.

Not a Nuisance.

Five men and a woman, all Chinese, on account of the water shortage, took their clothing to wash it in a nullah, and were arrested because they created a nuisance. They were charged in Court yesterday.

It appears that at the base of the nullah there is a laundry establishment, which draws its water supplies from the same stream. By washing their clothes at the higher spot, the intruders were deemed to have polluted the water over which the laundry was said by the police to have a prior right because the pipes which connect up the supply run direct into the laundry, this arrangement being sanctioned by the Government.

Mr. R. E. Lindsell, who tried the case, said he could not see how a nuisance had been committed.

Inspector Blackman, who conducted the case, asked that the summons be remanded so that he might be enabled to interview the M.O.H. who had received some correspondence in the matter.

When the case was resumed this morning, the Inspector informed the Magistrate that he had seen the official in question and got from the latter the view that it was hardly a nuisance which the defendants in the case had committed. Under the circumstances the charge would be withdrawn.

LABOUR DOMINATION.

Denounced By President Harding.

The Independence Day Celebration at Marion (Ohio) were marked by a noteworthy speech by President Harding.

In the course of his speech, the President said:—Our representative form of constitutional government is responsive to the will of the majority, responsive to the expression of deliberate public opinion. It must be so to endure. Majorities, restrained by the protection of minorities ever must rule.

RULE OF MAJORITY.

"The Constitution and the laws sponsored by the majority must be enforced. It does not matter who opposes. If an opposing minority has a just objection, the rising tide of public opinion will change the law. There is no abiding liberty under any other plan. I mean to sound no note of pessimism. This Republic is secure. Menaces do arise, but public opinion will efface them. Meanwhile Government must repress them. The Eighteenth Amendment denies to minority a fancied sense of personal liberty, but the amendment is the will of America and must be sustained by the Government and public opinion, else contempt for the law will undermine our very foundations."

"The foremost thought in the Constitution is the right to freedom and the pursuit of happiness. Men must be free to live and achieve. Liberty is gone in America when any man is denied the right to work and live by that work. It does not matter who denies."

"A free American has the right to labour without any other's leave. It would be no less an abridgment to deny men to bargain collectively. Governments cannot tolerate any class or group domination through force. It will be a sorry day when group domination is reflected in our laws. Government and the laws which government is charged with enforcing must be for all the people, ever aiming at the common good."

"The tendencies of the present day are not surprising. War stirred the passions of men, and left the world in upheaval. There have been readjustments and liquidations and more remain to be made. In the making there has been the clash of interests, the revelations of creed, the perfectly natural tendency to defend self-interests. It has developed groups and blocs, and magnified class inclinations. But the readjustment is no less inevitable, and it is world-wide. It is the problem of human kind. Your Government has sought to aid, with patience, with tolerance, with sympathy. It has sought to mitigate the burdens. It has sought the merging of viewpoints to make the way easier. It believes the America of our opportunity and unchallenged security affords the way to solution."

DANGERS FROM WITHIN.

"In war we give all we possess, all our lives, all our resources, everything, to make sure our national survival. Our preservation in peace is no less important. It calls for every patriotic offering because dangers from within are more difficult to meet than the alien enemy."

"My one outstanding conviction, after sixteen months in the presidency, is that the greatest traitor to his country is he who appeals to prejudice and inflames passion when sober judgment and honest speech are so necessary to firmly established tranquillity and security."

GEN. PERSHING'S OPINION.

General Pershing also delivered an address, saying:—"Where whole communities openly sympathize with ruthless murder of inoffensive people in the exercise of the right to earn a livelihood, and where wholesale murder goes unpunished, it is imperative that public opinion should demand that the strong arm of the law, under fearless officials, take positive action. Over and inexcusable acts of this character, not only debase the participants, but lower the whole moral fabric of the Nation and strike at the very existence of self government."

"MURDEROUS FORCE" CONDEMNED.

In the course of a leading article on President Harding's speech, a Wall Street journal says:—President Harding's Independence Day speech at his home town, though part of a local celebration, is of national interest. Thoughts were expressed that every citizen should read and ponder, and parents may well teach to their children. Here is a fundamental fact that must be remembered if America is to go on. He said:—

"The foremost thought in the Constitution is the right to freedom and the pursuit of happiness. Men must be free to live and achieve. Liberty is gone in America when any man is denied by anybody the right to work and to live by that work. It does not matter who denies. A free American has the right to labour without any other's leave."

"It would be no less an abridgment to deny men the right to bargain collectively. Governments cannot tolerate any class or group domination through force. It will be a sorry day when group domination is reflected in our laws. Government and the laws which government is charged with enforcing must be for all the people, ever aiming at the common good."

This is the spirit of America speaking through the President. How different it sounds from the greedy demands of "blocs" in Congress, or capitalistic monopolies. Contrast it with the scathing testimony of Mr. Compagnon before the Lockwood Committee, justifying wrongs in the name of the closed shop.

What a hideous contrast to that voice of America is the crack of rifles, and the roar of a riotous mob putting to death a lot of working men whose only crime was that of exercising the right to labour without any other's leave. The President said:—"Liberty in America is gone when any man is denied by anybody the right to work."

Was the President at Marion thinking of Herrin when he spoke those words? The President sets his approval on the right to collective bargaining. But the people must note what collective bargaining is—and what it is not. The organization whose original aim was to secure that right, now seeks to deny the right to work without any other's leave. Its leaders proclaim that doctrine and raise large sums from their followers to enforce it.

The United Mine Workers is an object lesson of the danger of class domination through force. It raises many millions every year, not for the purpose of uplifting and helping its members, but to support agitation and strikes. Few are the instances where it has called strikes that have not been murders, and the victims were non-union men who were doing just what the President said they had the right to do—to labour without any other's leave."

Days and weeks have elapsed and justice has not moved at Herrin. Law and authority have apparently bowed to the supremacy of murderous force. "Governments," says the President, "cannot tolerate any class or group domination through force." Will the American people listen to this, or will they permit the spirit of Herrin to dominate in America?

GENERAL NEWS.

POLITICAL AMENITIES.

Political controversy is conducted in various ways in various countries. A Nationalist organ in Central Europe recently published a descriptive article on a neighbouring country, in which a few of the expressions used were:—"An ugly crocodile," "A malformed goose," "A den of robbers," "A monster," "An ulcer in the body of Europe," "A pig-sty," "A diseased appendix which is endangering the life of Europe and which ought to be removed with fire and sword and flung upon the dunghill where it rightly belongs." The removal of an appendix with a sword and with fire would be a highly ceremonial sort of operation.

LIABILITY FOR BANK HYPOTHECATIONS.

Hongkong & Shanghai Bank v. Suzuki & Co.

A suit has been filed in the Kobe District Court by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation against Messrs. Suzuki and Co., of Kobe which raises an interesting point. The plaintiffs claim payment of ¥26,300 compensation as damages sustained owing to negligence of defendants. The suit as filed states that a contract was signed on July 15th, 1920, between the Consolidated Mercantile Company, Ltd., for the supply of 2,000 cases of tinplates to be shipped at Baltimore for Shanghai by the Seifuku-maru, and bills of lading were issued on the day the contract was concluded. A draft for $20,200 issued by the Consolidated Steel Corporation on the consignees was discounted in July, 1920, in New York by the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, who thereupon secured a lien on the goods. The through bills of lading were forwarded to the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank at Shanghai, who handed them in accordance with local custom to the consignees to pass them through the Customs and store them in the Bank's name. Before doing so, however, the Bank to preserve their title put the following endorsements on the bills of lading:—

1. Under lien to the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank.
2. Deliver on payment of all charges to Nippon Yusen Kaisha Wharf to be held to the order of the Hongkong & Shanghai Bank.
The goods were found to be lying in Kobe and the consignees forwarded the bills of lading to Suzuki & Co., who were the agents for the Seifuku-maru, for transshipment. The ongoing bills of lading were made out to the order of Messrs. Suzuki & Co., without any note of the lien of the Hongkong & Shanghai Bank, of which Messrs. Suzuki had notice by the endorsements on the original bills.

As a result the bills of lading were delivered to the consignees at Shanghai and a part of the goods were disposed of by the latter. The 593 cases transported by the Omi-maru were recovered. The bills of lading for 1,302 cases conveyed by the Yawata-maru were stolen by a dishonest employee of the consignee who obtained Messrs. Suzuki & Co's endorsement on them and obtained delivery of the goods and converted them to his own use. The Hongkong Mercantile Co. is now in liquidation. The Hongkong & Shanghai Bank claim damages against Messrs. Suzuki for delivering the goods to the consignee while ignoring the Bank's lien on them.

It is expected that the hearing of the case will begin on September 1st.

EMPIRE WIRELESS CHAIN.

Modified Scheme.

Important modifications have been made in the scheme for linking the Mother Country and the Empire overseas in one continuous chain of wireless communication. The Cabinet has determined to limit its attention for the time being to establishing the larger links in the chain of Imperial wireless communication—for example, between Great Britain, India, South Africa, Australia, and, it is hoped, Canada. For some time to come the chain will lack several of its other links. Stations which have been temporarily cut out are Suez Canal, Singapore, Hongkong and East Africa. Instead of proceeding by geographical steps of about two thousand miles each to Australia, South Africa, and India, the Government has decided to establish direct communication, and for this purpose a great new wireless station will be erected in this country capable of developing 240 kilowatts of high-frequency power. This new station will be one of the largest in the world, and with the five stations in operation a service will be maintained capable of handling more than ten million words a year. When the relay stations have been established, it is expected that between twenty and thirty million words per annum can be dealt with. Atmospheric conditions play an important part in long distance wireless operations. In tropical countries particularly, at certain periods of the year, on account of the weakness of the signals, a full twenty-four hours service per day is not possible. It is in this connection that relay stations will be of great utility.

In the meantime it would be quite possible for places like Hongkong, Singapore, or Kenya to construct at small cost receiving stations which would permit them to catch all the news that was, so to speak, flying over their heads to Australia and South Africa.
It is not certain to what extent economy will be achieved by the modified scheme. The original scheme provided for a capital expenditure of £1,243,000, with annual charges amounting to £425,000, but the new station to be erected in England, being so much more powerful, will be considerably more expensive. On the other hand, the omission, or deferment, of the stations at Suez, Singapore, Hongkong, and East Africa, must reduce the total expenditure involved. Of the original estimate of capital expenditure, £853,000, was to be borne by the Imperial Government, who were also to defray £243,000 of the annual charges.

WU TING-FANG'S VOGUE.

How It Began.

[By W. E. Adams in the "Boston Herald"]

The death of Dr. Wu Ting-fang, formerly Chinese Minister at Washington, recalls that it was at a dinner of the Gridiron Club that he made his first after-dinner speech in America, and that his performance on that occasion started him on the successful round of addresses which was so notable a part of his service here and helped to make him such a popular personage.

The Gridiron club, in arranging its list of club guests for a dinner, either in 97 or 98 decided to include Mr. Wu and it became my duty, as secretary of the club, to invite him. Instead of doing this by letter, it was arranged through the late William E. Curtis, the well-known Washington correspondent, for me to call in person at the Chinese legation by appointment and deliver the invitation by word of mouth. It was an interesting experience, for Mr. Wu was all that the newspapers has described, when it came to asking questions. At the end of the interview he knew as much about the Gridiron club as any man outside of its membership, and accepted the invitation to attend the dinner.

One of the functions of the secretary of the Gridiron club is to seat the guests, a job requiring skill something akin to that needed to put together correctly the pieces of a picture puzzle. At this dinner I placed Mr. Wu at the side of the late Speaker Reed. As the guests were assembling, I remember saying to Mr. Reed, "I have put a man side of you to-night that I think can hold you." Mr. Reed, upon learning the identity of his neighbour, said: "Oh, yes, I have met him. He is a remarkable man."

DINNER HAS LIVELY OPENING.

The dinner began with a red-hot skit, in which the late Robert J. Wynne, a veteran Washington correspondent, engaged in what appeared to be a very loud and heated criticism of the soup which had been served. My guest on that occasion was the late Sir William Randall Cremer—who afterward received the Nobel prize for his work on behalf of world peace—who was greatly surprised as was Mr. Wu at the way this skit was carried off. It was something which no Englishman, and certainly no Chinese would ever believe could be done at a club dinner. It was a typical Gridiron stunt, teeming with red-hot shafes of wit, and Mr. Wynne, who was a master at this sort of thing, was ably assisted on this occasion by the late Frank Bennett, then the manager of the Arlington hotel.

As soon as this stunt was well under way, Mr. Wu turned to Speaker Reed and asked, "What is this?"

Mr. Reed responded, "Why, this man doesn't like the soup and he is criticizing it."

"But," said Mr. Wu, "should not he wait until the dinner is over before making his criticism?"

"Oh, no," responded Mr. Reed, "If you don't like anything here you get up and say so."

"This is very distressing," said Mr. Bennett, who had at first assumed a frightened expression, put on an angry look and remarked: "We will settle this thing right now." Griffin, the head waiter, who knew and was known by hundreds of the leading men of the country, gave a signal, and from the kitchen came four waiters bearing, on a sort of litter, an enormous kettle, which they set down in the area in front of the president of the club.

WU BECOMES ABSORBED.

Mr. Wynne lifted the cover of this kettle and peering into it ejaculated "Ah!" He then extracted from the great kettle a dozen or more articles which in the slang of the day were "in the soup" (including the arbitration treaty which Mr. Cremer had brought over to America). As Mr. Wu comprehended the kind of a dinner he was attending he took off his little saucer-like hat and, drawing up to the table, watched the proceeding with unabated interest. He refused dish after dish that was offered to him, and finally Mr. Reed, noting that he was not eating, said to him:

"Mr. Minister, aren't you going to eat anything?"

"No," said Mr. Wu, waving aside the waiter who was offering a tray of food. "I am afraid I shall miss something."

Later in the dinner the minister announced that he had been invited to the American institution of dinner and was waiting around the long

SAFEGUARD YOUR LUNGS.
 Peps Protect Against Pleurisy & Pneumonia.

Every year the rains bring along with them the usual crop of bad colds, night coughs, tender throats, sore chests, and bronchitis. Those dreaded lung troubles, pleurisy and pneumonia begin to collect their heavy toll of victims.

With a bottle of breathable Peps always at hand, however, you can so strengthen the throat and lungs that they become immune to weather dangers. You simply take a Peps out of its silver jacket in which every tablet is sealed, and place it on the tongue. As the tablet dissolves, the volatile, healing, strengthening and germ-destroying vapours given off, are breathed direct into the throat, chest and lungs.

In this speedy and effective way the throat and bronchials are quickly cleared of obstinate phlegm and other impurities; dangerous germ disease is nipped in the bud, the lining membrane of the air tubes, made sore and inflamed by the incessant cough, is soothed, healed and strengthened anew.

This Peps direct method of treatment is praised by eminent medical men and by all who have tried the remedy. Peps are of unequalled value in cases of chronic cough, night chills, colds, bronchitis, asthma, influenza, colds, sore throat, laryngitis, old-age cough, bronchial asthma, difficult breathing, tightness of chest, children's coughs, wheeziness, and other throat, chest and lung weaknesses.

Each Peps tablet is separately wrapped in silver-foil and they are packed only in sealed bottles. Obtainable of all chemists, bazaar and dealers in British medicines in China and The Straits.

PREMIER'S GREAT AMBITION.

Small Niche for Serving Nation.

The Prime Minister spent a busy time among his own people at Aberystwyth on the 19th ult. He was presented with the freedom of the borough, entertained to luncheon, took part in the jubilee celebrations of the University College of Wales, and attended the unveiling of a life-size bronze statue of Thomas Charles Edwards, the first principal of the college. There was a vast gathering in the new College Hall.

Mr. Lloyd George first expressed his thanks in Welsh and, proceeding in English, said: "No man has lived into his 60th year, and gone through great afflictions, without having a full realization of his own shortcomings, and when he meets generous men and women, especially among his own countrymen, who are prepared to overlook all those shortcomings for what he has endeavoured to do, it is an encouragement to him to go on."

I forgive you, he added, for your exaggeration and your over-praise, of which I am as conscious as the most bitter of my foes.

"In the war I claim," said the Prime Minister, "to have done no more than millions of my own countrymen; that is I did my best. They did their best under more trying conditions than in my case."

"It was a terrible war," Mr. Lloyd George continued, "the turnpikes had been abolished on the road to freedom."

Never had the world, in its whole history paid such a heavy toll for clearing that turnpike and keeping the paths open for the nations to march along as in 1914 to 1918.

To this hour toll was being paid in east and west, in north and south. It was a heavy toll. Ten millions of young men fell. It was a heavy toll, but was it too heavy a price to pay?

That depends, said Mr. Lloyd George, on the value you attach to human freedom. The answer will be in your own hearts. (Hear, hear.)

When I think of the devastation of the world, and realise that some have doubts as to the wisdom of this country in going into the war, I do not regret the alternatives, for if we had kept out, I will tell you that the alternative would have been an arrogant, ruthless military Empire astride Europe, France and Russia prostrate, and the continent of Europe and its national freedoms trampled under an iron tyranny.

What would have happened to Britain? Britain would have survived for a while. God has given us the sea for our moat around this castle in the Atlantic. No empire could have crossed that moat, but the British Empire would have come face to face with the arrogant Empire dominating Europe.

The Empire would, in that position, have concentrated all its resources for the deadly moment when the final struggle must come.

I shall not attempt to prophesy what would have happened when the final Armageddon came.

You may have doubts, said the Premier, as to the value of what this country won in the war. Just reflect upon what would have happened if we had not achieved the victory and freed the world from the great menace that threatened it, but don't let it happen again.

It is far too terrible, and to avoid such a repetition is the supreme task of statesmanship at this moment.

With steady industry and with such unity as is possible we are slowly working through our difficulties.

It will be one of the most amazing stories when it comes to be written—not how the British Empire, absolutely unprepared for war, leapt into the arena with very little armour, in fact with the naked sword—but what is not so dramatic, and therefore not so startling, the quiet, steady work she is doing to build herself up again.

The Premier continued:—Great Britain is gathering her resources together and putting herself in a position where she will stand in Britain on firmer ground than she has stood on before.

Just stand on the watch tower and look around and you will see this country is gradually building up its depleted resources.

It is gradually building up its scattered fabrics, and over all there is a steadiness which has never been present before. (Cheers.)

My hope is in Britain and the British character.

Great Britain faced the greatest cataclysm in history and got through.

PEACE ESSENTIAL.

She is facing her troubles now with the same old calm and the same old determination, the same old resource which she has ever displayed.

We are getting through our difficulties, and you will see it by and by.

We are building on a sound foundation, and that is how we must build if we are to think of the future.

We are building on firm foundation, and Britain will be stronger than ever in the years to come. (Cheers.)

But remember this—peace is essential.

The world cannot get on without it. The friends of peace must work together for peace—there are too many sects amongst them. Their business is not to preach of sects, but to preach the gospel of peace.

Do not let us have to say that the ark shall only be shouldered by their chosen and privileged few.

Let us all work together. I don't say we can all agree together. That would be asking too much, but we can all work together to avert a repetition of the great calamity through which we have all so recently passed.

I want to work so that we may never be in danger of such an experience again.

My great ambition, and I say it with all humility, is that I may obtain a small niche somewhere in the world for having served, not a party, but a whole nation. (Loud and prolonged cheers.)

SHANGHAI'S NEW BRIDGE

Officially Declared Open.

The new Szechuen Road Bridge at Shanghai over the Soochow Creek was officially declared open on the 11th inst. by Mr. H. G. Somers, Chairman of the Municipal Council, who was accompanied at a short ceremony by Messrs. W. P. L. M. A. B. Lowson and V. G. Lyman, members of the Council, Mr. N. O. Liddell, Secretary and Commissioner-General, Mr. C. Harper, Commissioner of Public Works, Mr. K. J. McKuen, Commissioner of Police, and Mr. M. O. Springfield, Assistant Commissioner of Police in charge of traffic. The bridge is now open for traffic after having been closed some sixteen months. In the ordinary course of bridge construction on a narrow piece of water like the Soochow Creek, it would have been quite an easy matter to build a bridge across it, but with the new Szechuen Road bridge, the P.W.D. engineers have had to contend with tricky currents and an unusually soft bottom. Considerable thought has to be given as to whether or not the bridge could be wholly built of concrete. THE NATURE OF THE WORK.

Owing to the extremely soft bottom of the creek, it was at first feared that the cantilevers would be affected at some time or other inasmuch as any settlement of the pier would be magnified at the ends of the cantilevers, where it would produce unpleasant inflections in the road surface, and destroy the curved contour of the bridge. To prevent this occurring the load was reduced by designing the pier hollow, of reinforced concrete, with a spread base supported on piles on which the loading intensity was kept down to 150 lbs. per square foot of pile surface.

Another point which had to be taken into account and dealt with thoughtfully was the traffic on the creek. In order to avoid excessive construction of the fairway in a creek where traffic is already very congested, it was necessary to construct one half of the bridge at a time and to have the staging under it removed before having it erected on the other side. The construction was commenced on the northern half. For the construction of the pier, excavation had to be carried down 27 feet below the maximum high water, and a steel pile cofferdam was decided on. The site was excavated by dredging to a level of 7.5 below Conservancy datum, and a crib of timber was bolted together, floated into place and sunk in position. The sheet piles were driven from a pile frame working from the top of the pier, and designed to enable it to negotiate the corners without the erection of staging outside. The typhoon of August 24 last year brought the tide over the top and flooded the dam but did not harm the construction.

There is one curious point in connection with the hollow pier which may be mentioned. It is impracticable entirely to prevent the leakage of water from without when the walls are liable to collision from heavy barges; at the same time it is advisable, if possible, to avoid the variations of load on the piers due to rise and fall of the tide, but if the tide is freely admitted by drainage holes, the mud in suspension will settle through the stagnant water and ultimately fill the pier. To deal with this, a six-inch layer of concrete was placed in the walls just above the base.

LABOUR DOMINATION.

In the railway strike which is now causing such hardship and trouble to the people of the United States, the Harding Administration is undergoing its greatest test, but, happily, it can count on public support to defeat the aims of organised labour, which is making industrial war,
not against its ancient enemies, capital and management, but against the Government. In his Independence Day speech at Marion, President Harding put the issue as clearly as it could possibly be expressed, and his dictums are such that they must command the endorsement of all who prefer responsible government to anarchy. There was no denial of the right of men to collective bargaining, but the President summarised the constitutional outlook when he said that "Governments cannot tolerate any class or group domination through force" and when he added that "Government and the laws which the Government is charged with enforcing must be for all the people, ever aiming at the public good."

There has been group domination in America, as there has been in other centres where organised minorities have attempted to coerce others into refraining from work. We have seen the same evil strongly pronounced even here in Hongkong, leading, as in the States, to the taking of human life. That is the kind of thing that cannot be tolerated by any Government which aspires to serve the public.
What we are now seeing in America is a struggle between invisible and irresponsible super-government of labour on one side, and the visible Government responsible to all the people, on the other. The grim debate, whether the sacred right to strike is greater than the sacred obligation of the Government to act "for the greatest good of all the people," has begun. This is the real strike issue that overshadows wages, earnings, open shop, the right to organize and all other factors, vital and important as these are.

To come to a just appreciation of what is occurring in the States just now it should be recalled that in 1920, the American people, tired of civil war between railway workers and managements, passed a law, known as the Each-Cummine Act, to prevent these perennial feuds.

This enactment did not forbid strikes, nor did it give the Railway Labour Board any legal power to enforce its decisions.
It was an effort to give arbitration a fair and honest trial by a tribunal on which workers, managers and the public were all represented. It formed, in reality, a court of public opinion.
Into that law was written the national interest, which is greater than that of many thousand railway shareholders and hundreds of thousands of workers, great as these are. But because labour does not like its decisions, it quits work and seeks to terrorise those who are willing to carry on. The strikers' real aim is to smash the Labour Board, regardless of the fact that that Board was created at the request of the nation. And by its attack on that body, labour is assailing public opinion and assuredly crystallising national sentiment against itself.

Telephone Co's Reply.

Mr. Parker Ness has not lost any time in issuing a reply on behalf of the Telephone Company to the report prepared by the joint committee of the Chambers of Commerce. In the course of his lengthy communication, Mr.
Parker Ness shows himself no mean dialectician, yet in regard to the essential justice of the case matters remain much as they were. As the Company's spokesman makes a special point of the incompetence of the inquirers to judge of technical considerations, it is not out of place to point out that he refused information where it might reasonably have been expected, as in relation to the basis on which the valuation schedules were compiled and as to how the residuary values and rates of depreciation were arrived at. Mr. Parker Ness disputes the statement that "the system is to a great extent obsolete."

This is a technical matter, but at the same time it is a question of plain fact, and Mr. Ness's denial that the system is to a great extent obsolete will make many readers rub their eyes. Among the various points that arise on the Company's reply, we may take the statement respecting a fair return on capital as characteristic.
In 1921 the Company paid 20 per cent.—10 per cent. dividend and the same as bonus. The Company's representative treats this as less than 2 per cent. and speaks of the capital having been increased by divisible profits being put into the business instead of being distributed. He overlooks that this is another way of saying that the present "low" rates charged to subscribers were sufficient to provide still larger dividends than those declared, even though the Company lost large sums through adopting a sterling basis. But is it a fact that the present market value of the undertaking is the only fair basis, or a fair basis at all, for fixing rates? That value is due not simply to development work by the Company, but to an all-round inflation of prices consequent upon world conditions. If the effect of these conditions had been a huge slump instead of inflation so that values had been divided instead of multiplied by almost three, does Mr. Parker Ness expect us to assume that the Company would regard it as perfectly equitable that their rates to subscribers should be "cut" to a third of the present tariff? The sale to the new company is a formality; all that would happen, in effect, is that the existing company would hand over the undertaking to its alter ego.
If this largely accidental inflation of values is to be deemed a just basis for fixing rates, every public-utility company would be warranted in increasing its rates correspondingly irrespective of a sale. The Company takes exception to the description of its policy as "grasping." What is this taking advantage of inflated values but the essence of profiteering?

DAY BY DAY.

THERE ISN'T ANY VACATION IN THE SCHOOL OF EXPERIENCE.

There was one fatal case of plague (Chinese) notified yesterday.

The motor cycle belonging to Mr. W. C. Smith, which was previously reported to be stolen from the Star Ferry Wharf at Kowloon, has been recovered, under what circumstances is not yet made clear.

The Hongkong General Chamber of Commerce Fund in aid of the needy at Swatow now totals $76,135. The latest donations are $100 each from the Nippon Men-kwa Kabushiki Kaisha and the Gosho Kabushiki Kaisha.

Yung Shing, who appeared before Mr. Justice Wood, at the Criminal Sessions, yesterday, on a charge of being concerned in an assault at a match on Ping Chow Island, with intent to rob, on July 11th, was found "not guilty" and discharged.

Mr. D. O. de Silva, of the local office of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, has been made a Vice-President of the "Macaulay Club," an institution promoted by the Company for recognising the work of representatives who achieve marked success.

A well-known Singapore pilot, Captain E. J. Watson, sustained a broken arm and some nasty surface wounds in a collision between his motor-car and a tram.
He was on his way to the Tanjong Pagar docks to take a vessel out, but had to be taken to hospital instead.

Mr. G. Swedner, who lives at
No. 1, Orient Buildings, Kowloon, has had bad luck lately. On Saturday morning his house was burgled and a pair of spectacles and a raincoat valued at $40 taken away. Yesterday another theft occurred, when Mr. Swedner lost a pair of gold sleeve links, valued at $80, and a lady's toilet bag worth $20.

Despite having received three stab wounds, a contractor, who was attacked by two men near the railway bridge, Hungnam, managed to hold on to one of his assailants until assistance arrived. The other also was captured. The two men appeared before the Chief Justice (Sir Wm.
Rees-Davies) at the Criminal Sessions yesterday and were each sentenced to terms of six years' imprisonment.

Large numbers of residents military and naval centre like Hongkong aviation has been so neglected, but the probable explanation is that heavy expenditure would have been involved.

Now, the Hongkong Aero Club comes forward with the suggestion that a volunteer unit could be maintained, provided, of course, that the Air Ministry supplies the machines, spare parts and expert mechanics. For ourselves, we think the proposal is an excellent one and should receive the hearty support of the local administration. The question of expense is, apparently, nothing like so great as it would be like regular Air Force pilots were to be sent here; it is merely a matter, under the Club's suggestion, of giving them a few machines, a place to house them, and two expert mechanics to look after the planes. The advantages to Hongkong of a Volunteer Flight would be immense in times of trouble or in the extreme eventuality of war, whilst in times of peace there is always valuable information to be gained of air conditions here. The possibilities of commercial aviation in this part of the world have not been exploited on the right lines and here, too, there is scope for experiment. We can testify that there is plenty of keenness among many of the Colony's war-time pilots and that an efficient flight unit could easily be maintained if started. We wish the proposal the best of luck.

ROUND THE TOWN.

By "Gadabout."

"Ah, the times have changed; things are not what they used to be," is the cry of the old-timer.
Then he goes on to tell you that you can't get a decent servant for love nor money. They don't know their jobs, they're independent, they're lazy, they expect about three times the pay they got in the good old days, such like, so forth, till we, who were not in the Colony before the early '90s, or thereabouts, almost begin to wonder why they keep servants at all —they seem to have reached such a state of depravity. As far as their pay goes, at any rate, we all ought to be really and truly thankful. A correspondent to one of the Straits papers, who tells the journal that he has a moderately-sized bungalow, and from the tons of whose epistle one gathers that he is paying his retainers a little on the low side, sets out his monthly servant bill. He keeps six altogether. The ayce (chauffeur) gets $30, the amah ditto, the cook $23, the boy $20, the kebun (gardener) $15 and the tukan ayer (water carrier), who more or less takes the place of our coolie, also gets $15. The total is $135 per month. We haven't any rubber slump on up here, but there aren't many (if any) of us who fork out more than half this sum.
They seem to have money to burn down Singapore way.

A pal of mine has written a piece of—well, he calls it poetry.
It describes his thoughts when he was gadding about round the town. I don't know where he'd been, but the "myriad lights" bit looks very suspicious. Anyway, I won't keep you in suspense any longer. Here it is:—

Have you drifted along the harbour,

'Neath the Peak of a myriad lights;

And closed your eyes to soliloquise

On the wonder of Eastern nights?

Keep a stout heart and a stiff upper lip; it'll soon be over, there's only one more verse.

Have you dreamily sailed
'mong the islets,

'Neath the smile of an Eastern moon;

When the stars, set in blue, seemed to beckon to you—

Oh, L, what a place for a spoon.

The last line is mine. His was,
"And the sea soothed your soul with its croon." He says that line of mine shows I've no soul for poetry. I've not caught the spirit of the thing. Bunkum; that's about the most practical line of the lot. Still, he says "It's not done," so I suppose that settles it.

I was coming over on the Ferry with one of the old-timers the other day, and he was telling me of some of the changes that have taken place in the Colony during the forty odd years he has been here. The taipans didn't come down the hill carried by four stalwarts and the taipanesses didn't do the Dea Flavia stunt in their palequins in those days.
No; the Peak dwellers then were a few Chinese sons of the soil.
The Peakites then didn't think about catching the last car, new motor roads, hospitals and residents' associations. And there was no suburbia. The Star Ferry wouldn't have exactly made a fortune when my old-timer arrived in the Colony.
You didn't want to cross the harbour often when he came here.
Kowloon was just a swamp. The Europeans numbered one hundred and seventy-three (I think he said). If you had a lot of money you didn't know what to do with you went to the bottom of Pottinger Street. That's where the Bank stood. A European manager ran the place and he was assisted by half a dozen Chinese clerks. You didn't see big advertisements in the Telegraph
"Flossie Fluggins in 'The Woman Who Didn't at the Moviedrome'" in those days. No; and there was no going to Repulse Bay or Castle Peak for the week-end. There was no ball game, no Easmas, no tea dances, not even a Registration Bill then; in fact, it seems to me there was no anything. What did you do?" I asked. "About all there was was 'billiards,'" was the reply. I was very interested in what he told me. But I forgot to ask him if the general atmosphere of the place had changed. Anyway, make that; there was no need. I know it hasn't. We're

WATER POLO.

V.R.C.'s Big Win.

Some heavy scoring was witnessed in the Water Polo League at the V.R.C. last evening, when there was a good attendance, despite the rather unpleasant weather, the participation of the leading teams no doubt being the attraction.

The Lusitano team are a hefty lot, and they have registered some hefty scores, but this time they were outclassed. The V.R.C., with Busschaert in top form, had matters all their own way, running out winners by 9 goals to nil. Double figures were reached, but the final whistle had sounded a moment before.

Scarcely had the game opened then Busschaert, from a long pass forward, secured possession three or four yards from the objective, giving the goalie no earthly chance. In a few minutes he repeated the performance. Subsequently the exchanges were less one-sided for a while, but the Lusitano had few chances of sending in dangerous shots, their opponents harrying them closely as soon as they approached goal.

Afterwards the V.R.C. came more strongly than ever, Buss-chaert serving a succession of goals, while Stewart (2) and Watson further augmented the tally.

In the second game, United v.
R.G.A., the former also put up a bigish score, winning by 6-2; but the military had more of the game than the figures suggest.
Not long after the start the R.G.A. goalie went out to effect a save, but, failing to secure the ball, Mason had only to send the sphere through an undefended goal. Another followed, the soldiers played up spiritedly, and some exciting exchanges culminated in Parry scoring.

In the second half Mason and Leonard increased the civilians' lead, but Mc Dair then got through for the Artillery. However, their opponents score was added to by Mason and Logan, so that the United won as stated.

For to-morrow evening the matches are V.R.C. v. R.G.A., King's v. Lusitano.

BILLIARDS.

Catholic Club Match.

The Catholic Men's Club, under the secretaryship of Mr. Dillon, and a hardworking committee, is showing signs of a new lease of life. Fortnightly whist drives are in full swing and billiard tournaments are being arranged with other clubs. A billiard match has just been concluded with the following result:—

Catholic Union:—V. O. Rozario
250, M. Silva 250, J. M. Fonseca
250, M. V. Botelho 213, Antonio 250, F. E. Silva 250, A. F.
Remedios 250.

Catholic Men's Club:—T.
Murphy 230, F. T. James 220, Irvine 201, Hall 250, McMannon 191, C. O'Sullivan 170, O'Neil 165.
A return match between these is in progress.

still the same old mid-Victorian Hongkong.

So the A.D.C. is coming to life again. They're advertising for chorus belles. Now's your chance.
If the Editor was enterprising he would run a little beauty competition. I'll have to mention it to him, but I don't think he will.
Running anything like that you always get so awfully popular with the fair sex after it's all over.
The whole thing would have no end of possibilities. When the chorus is chosen, the advert. men could go round and see Miss Fairy Fete and ask her what tooth paste she uses, and perhaps Miss Gwendolyn Goldenlocks could be persuaded to come in in a Tachlepe advert. You'll have to make up your minds to do the thing properly, you know, girls.
And, of course, to make a real hit, you'll have to get in a street accident or two, and start making piles of baby elephants, and have a drop of monkey gland injected, and all that kind of thing. It is done. All the "best" chorus girls do, you know. I hope they'll get plethy of enthusiasts to come forward. Sorry I'm not much in the acting line myself, but if they want somebody to help choose the bevy of beauty, or anything in that department, just pass a long the glad tidings.

MODERN CIVILISATION.

Perry and Japan.

In a public lecture given last month at the University of Manchester on "Modern Civilisation: What Europe has given and what it has received" Dr. W. R. Shepherd (Professor of History at Columbia University, New York) said that Europe is now only a portion of the European world. East and West have affected each other so considerably that a quite new culture is being evolved by each. This theme Professor Shepherd worked out with a torrent of detail, generalisation and humour, sometimes disjointed, often challenging, but always stimulating; and so much to his audience's taste that when he asked for a few extra minutes it applauded vigorously in reply.

Until the appearance of the European there was no cosmopolitan spirit in Asia, he said, because there was no altruism. He did not believe that East and West would ever produce a single universal civilisation; but each would continue to learn more and more from the other. It was through Japan that Western ideas filtered into China. It was wrong to say that Commodore Perry, of the U.S.A. Navy, had let Europe into Japan. He had let Japan out. She was now a factor in European civilisation.

It was interesting to notice how the geographical peculiarities of the home lands had altered the attitude of colonising nations. The Spaniards, coming from a land of rugged mountains and un navigable rivers, had feared nothing they encountered. They had swept across America to the Pacific while the English in the North had stayed on the seaboard, daunted by the strangeness of the mountains. The Dutch, again, coming from a swamp, had founded colonies in swamp; the French, with memories of the Rhone and the Loire before them, had followed the great lakes and rivers. If colonisation were justly defined as a vast system of outdoor relief for the upper classes, the upper classes had sought naturally for conditions abroad as similar as possible to those they already knew at home. Colonising educated those who understood it. He considered that the English, through their contact with such different peoples, had learnt adaptability and tact. They might with profit study the influence their colonies had had on them. He would like to suggest that India had helped on the industrial revolution. Without capital no industrial progress can be made, and the Indian money brought home by the great nabobs of the 18th century may have in this instance provided the necessary capital.

"MRS. PAT" IN TROUSERS.

Historically True, But "No Pretty."

The story of her first appearance in trousers on the London stage is told by Mrs. Patrick Campbell in the final instalment of her memoirs in the Queen. It was in Philip Moeller's play, "George Sand," that she appeared thus attired, and her reception was a mixed one.

"Some people laughed at my trousers; some would not believe the cigar I smoked were real." Mr. Rudolf Besier was so affected by the sight of her that he was moved to write thus:— "My dear Mrs. Campbell, I am so sorry I was rude about your trousers, but quite sincerely they wounded me. If only they had been pretty trousers—but they were not. They may be historically correct. But in a play which outrages history in so many vital points, to outrage it further in the stuff and cut of 'George Sand's' trousers would have offended nobody, and pleased one person at least. Affectionately yours, Rudolf Besier."

Mr. Bernard Shaw enjoyed the play. He wrote:— "I went on Thursday night. I thought the British public absurdly illiterate and stupid. After the second act I felt inclined to come before the curtain and explain to them that the Coliseum was across the road and they had come into the wrong house. If they think that Alfred de Musset's part must be sacred music, at least Grock will make it clear that they are meant to laugh at him. Figs!"

What induced you to imitate Oscar Wilde? It was an inspiration, and amazingly like the original. . . . Your lovely performance is too good to be thrown away; it is a repertory part. Why can you not act as intelligently as that for me, devil hat you are? G. C. S."

LORDS REFORM.

Coalition Patchwork.

It was not a confident hand that framed the House of Lords reform resolutions, or if the original hand were confident its work has since been weakened by careful erasures. The weakness is revealed by want of detail and other evidences of incompleteness. If a workable measure of reform is hammered out in the ensuing discussions it will be the work of the peers themselves, and not of the Government, which has but loosely strung together a few proposals by no means original, writes the Times political correspondent.

It is another piece of Coalition patchwork. It will certainly not gratify the Conservatives, who want the unfettered restoration of the House of Lords' veto. It has already excited the fears of Coalition Liberals, and it is, as regards the suggested method of determining what Bills are money Bills, open to the suspicion of House of Commons men of all parties, who maintain that the Commons control of finance must not be impaired in any degree. That view is held in spite of the subdued but earnest criticism which followed the Speaker's decision that the Safeguarding of Industries Bill was a money Bill as defined by Clause 2 of the Parliament Act.

The genesis of the present proposals is, of course, in the Parliament Act of 1911, the notorious preamble to which declared the intention of Mr. Asquith's Government "to substitute for the House of Lords as it at present exists, a second Chamber constituted on a popular instead of a hereditary basis," and that the same measure would contain provisions "limiting and defining the powers of the new Second Chamber." In the same year Lord Lansdowne introduced a House of Lords' Reconstitution Bill, which received a second reading in the Lords, but went no further. In 1917 Mr. Lloyd George appointed the Bryce Conference, which produced an elaborate report, suggesting "more complicated machinery for constituting a 'popular' second House, and for settling differences between the two Houses. The Resolutions now before the country are based in the main upon the Lansdowne Bill, and to a smaller extent on the Bryce recommendations.

THREE ELEMENTS.

The Government resolutions contemplate a Second Chamber, composed of three elements—a hereditary element, an elected element, a nominated element. Only person of the Blood Royal would sit by purely hereditary right. It is proposed that the bishops should retain their seats and the Law lords theirs. Hereditary peers would elect an as yet unspecified member of their own order.

The resolutions do not indicate any preference as between the direct method of choosing the elected members. Neither is the number of the elected members indicated, nor the number of the nominated members. The balance of the three elements is, therefore, undetermined. This part of the Government plan—if so much vagueness deserves to be called a plan—closely follows the Lansdowne scheme which proposed that the Second Chamber should be constituted of peers of the Blood Royal, the Law lords, one hundred elected hereditary peers, 120 elected persons, one hundred persons appointed by the Crown, the two Archbishops, and five elected Bishops. In those days the right of the Bishops to sit in the House of Lords was vigorously challenged and Lord Lansdowne made a considerable concession to the feeling of the time. The Government resolutions provide for a House consisting of approximately of 350 members. The Lansdowne House would have been a little smaller. The membership of the House of Lords to-day is about seven hundred.

Lord Lansdowne proposed the indirect election of elected members of the Second Chamber by an electoral college consisting of the members of the House of Commons grouped in areas. The Bryce Committee also approved of the method of indirect election, but on a more comprehensive scale.

CONTROL OF FINANCE.

The remaining proposals in the resolutions have reference to the limitation of the veto made by the Parliament Act, which was not on the Statute-book when the Lansdowne Bill was introduced. Here the Government has consulted the recommendations of the Bryce Committee, which suggested the establishment of a financial Committee of the two Houses—the Second House, and a very different assembly from the Lansdowne House, it will be remembered—with an outside chairman to decide whether Bills are financial. The resolutions propose such a Committee with the Speaker as chairman, which would seem to give it a permanent bias towards the House of Commons' point of view. The Bryce Committee suggested how and when the Committee should act, but the resolutions are silent on these points.

The setting up of a joint committee of any sort will have strong opposition in the Commons. There will also be opposition to the final proposal that a Bill altering the constitution of the Second Chamber, after the adoption of the present proposals, should not have the benefit of the provisions of the Parliament Act, which would permit of its becoming law in the lifetime of one Parliament.

The resolutions are a poor result of the consideration given to the subject by the Government during many months. They tell eloquently of the failure of Ministers to reach agreement. The Cabinet Committee presided over by the Lord Chancellor ceased from its labour because of hopeless divisions of opinion and the agreement in the Cabinet is on nothing more than the shadowy proposals which will stir neither enthusiasm nor active opposition till they come to be made more substantial by the filling in of the details.

PLANS OF TIBET MISSION.

Search for Light on Origin of Human Race.

Members of the British Buddhist Mission to Tibet left London for Calcutta last month. The mission expects to be absent from England at least a year.

Dr. William Montgomery McGovern, the eminent Oriental scholar and traveller, who has gone with the mission as interpreter and general adviser, said that the mission was one of good will to Buddhists. Its members hoped to be received favourably.

If they were the result should be an enormous addition to the world's knowledge. Much of the work in Tibet would be anthropological, and should throw new light on the origin of the human race.

"The monastic libraries of Tibet," said Dr. McGovern, "are rich in books and manuscripts hitherto known to scholars of the outside world only by repute."

PRECIOUS DOCUMENTS. "It will be part of my special task to examine these volumes, bringing away such originals or copies as the authorities will allow to leave Tibet for further study in Europe."

"We shall endeavour to bring back a complete knowledge of Tibet and its people, and to bring the Tibetans themselves into closer relations with the rest of the world."

ALEXANDRA BUILDINGS, HONGKONG.

It is known, Dr. McGovern added, that Tibetans want to learn more of the outer world, from which they had cut themselves off for so many centuries. They are jealous of their independence, and much of their exclusiveness is due to fear that they might be overshadowed by more powerful nations, and their religious customs and beliefs, their national spirit and laws, destroyed.

"We do not approach the Tibetans with the intention of suggesting any changes or reforms, but simply to establish brotherly relations between them and the rest of the Buddhist world."

"The establishment of a modern Buddhist university and hospital will probably be discussed, and a gift of medical stores is being taken."

SHIPPING NEWS.

SHANGHAI FREIGHTS.

Meams, Wheelock and Co., Shanghai, in their circular of 19th August state:—To United States via Pacific. Since last writing even the little sea and alk that was then moving has fallen off and there is now practically nothing offering across the Pacific. Coastwise. Since last writing, a few charters have been made from Northern Ports but the recent spell of bad weather all over the China Coast has caused much damage to shipping and property and has seriously interfered with sailing arrangements. Advices from Hongkong report a very dull market there and the situation is further aggravated by the unsettled political situation at Canton.

CUT IN DOCKYARD WAGES.

Dockyardmen at Portsmouth received the news last month that their wages were to be cut by instalments to the amount of 16s. 6d. per week. The cut arises out of the lowering of wages in the private shipbuilding industry. Workers' representatives on the Admiralty Shipbuilding Trade Joint Council made a strong fight against the reduction, and pointed out the hardship that would follow in dockyard towns already affected by Government economies. As a result the official side modified the proposed cut so that war tonnage to industrial employees would be reduced by 7s. 6d. from July 15, 3s. from August 13, and 2s. on August 27. The remaining 4s. cut is to be a matter for further negotiation, but in no case will it take effect until the end of October.

BRITISH SHIPS AND PANAMA CANAL.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Gilbert asked the President of the Board of Trade whether United States-owned ships on ocean voyages proceeding through the Panama Canal had a preference on dues and charges as against British-owned vessels using the same canal; if so, could he state what was the amount of such preference against British-owned ships, and if it applied also to the shipping of all other countries? Mr. Stanley Baldwin replied:—The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative, and the other parts, therefore, do not arise. Mr. Gilbert asked the President of the Board of Trade whether the United States Coastwise trade was specially reserved by United States law to United States-owned vessels, and British ships were not allowed to carry any cargo between any United States coast ports, and whether United States vessels engaged in Panama Canal trade were only charged nominal dues. Mr. Stanley Baldwin replied:—The case is as stated in the first part of the question, and the answer to the second part is in the negative.

WIRELESS WATCHERS AND ALLEGED INEFFICIENCY.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Murray Macdonald asked the President of the Board of Trade, whether many cases proving the inefficiency of wireless watchers for the performance of the duties assigned to them had occurred since the Merchant Shipping Advisory Committee considered the question of their employment; whether, in particular, he was aware that the watchers on at least five ships within wireless range of the steamer Egypt had been found to have missed the S.O.S. distress call and that on at least 19 other ships, fitted with wireless and within range of the Egypt, no wireless watch was kept at the time of the S.O.S. call; and whether, in view of these facts, he would consider such an amendment of the existing law as will make the employment of at least two fully qualified wireless operators on all ships of the 2nd and 3rd classes compulsory? Mr. Stanley Baldwin replied:—Since the Merchant Shipping Committee reported on the question of watchers 27 cases of alleged inefficiency have been brought before the Board of Trade, in some of which there is prima facie evidence of technical inefficiency. These cases will be inquired into. As the circumstances attending the loss of the Egypt will shortly be inquired into by a court, I do not propose to make any statement as to the wireless service of ships in the neighbourhood, but if the hon. member will be good enough to send me particulars of the ships he refers to, I will see that the matter is not overlooked. The whole question of watchers is being very carefully followed, but there is not a sufficient case at present to justify an amendment of the existing regulations.
